WOMEN'S SPECIFIC FIT

- + The stretch mesh located on the shoulders, backpanel, lumbar and hipbelt contour to a variety of body shapes and sizes to create a custom fit to your body.
- + The shoulder harness is designed for narrower shoulders, and incorporates elastic patches to accommodate a range of women's chest sizes to create an anatomical fit for women and limit unwanted pack-vest movement.
- + Women's hips are conically shaped with a larger difference between the waist and hip measurements. The hipbelt on the 15L are shaped and angled to accommodate this difference, which allows for better load stabilization and support.
- + Different than traditional packs, chest size is the critical factor when sizing to ensure proper fit.

1 POSITION THE PACK

This pack anchors to the rib cage to prevent unwanted bouncing. To do this, it needs to sit higher on your torso than a typical hiking pack. When first putting on your pack, make sure the top of the pack sits just below the base of your neck.

2 POSITION DUAL CHEST STRAPS

Buckle both sternum straps, leaving the webbing a little loose for now. The top chest strap should be positioned 1-2"/2.5-5 cm below the collarbone. The bottom chest strap can be moved up toward the middle of the harness to accommodate free and easy breathing; however, keep it down low if pack stability is your primary concern. For women, adjust the chest strap position so that it fits comfortably and keeps the pack snug.

3 TIGHTEN CHEST STRAPS

Before tightening the chest straps, make sure you have completely loosened the under-arm side body straps on each side of the pack. With the chest strap positioned appropriately, pinch the end of the webbing with your thumb and index finger and pull the strap until the tension pulls the strap from your grasp. This helps avoid overtightening the pack. Make small adjustments as necessary to ensure a secure fit.

4 TIGHTEN SIDE BODY STRAPS

Pull the side body straps that connect the harness and pack under each arm. This will pull in the lower portion of the pack against the body and snug the pack around your rib cage. Double-check the chest harness strap positioning and tension to ensure optimal fit, comfort and stability.

5 TIGHTEN SHOULDER HARNESS STRAPS & HIPBELT [DURO 15 / DYNA 15]

Cinch the harness to hipbelt strap after fitting the chest straps. Then, buckle and tighten the hipbelt buckle. It is not as important to place directly over the iliac crest (hipbone) as the weight is being supported by the shoulder harness.
